Murray State University introduces the Murray Academy for Nonprofit Development and Leadership Program

Developed by Nonprofit Leadership faculty, local nonprofit leaders and professional consultants

MURRAY, Ky. – Murray State University’s Center for Adult and Regional Education (CARE) is co-hosting a nonprofit development and leadership academy/ training with the University’s Nonprofit Resource Center called the Murray Academy for Nonprofit Development and Leadership (MANDL). MANDL is primarily intended for nonprofit professionals in Murray, Kentucky and the surrounding area. Nonprofit leaders play a vital role in the community, often facing challenges such as inadequate funding, lack of volunteers and limited professional development opportunities.

MANDL will provide local nonprofit organization leaders the opportunity to participate in a series of eight monthly seminars focused on relevant topics, such as program development, financial management, motivating volunteers, communications and marketing and more. The cost of the academy is $250 and lunch will be provided at each seminar. Additionally, program graduates will receive the Certificate in Nonprofit Leadership as well as continuing education unit credits.

“One of the primary goals of the nonprofit sector, as a whole, is to improve the quality of life in communities,” said director of
